Council Authorizes $50,000 for Fire-Fighting Equipment; Action on Gambling Delayed

Purchase of Two New Trucks and Improvement of Alarm System Voted After City Gets Insurance Rate Warning; C. of C. Group Favors Action.

City council last night launched a $50,000 modernization program for the fire department, authorizing purchase of two new trucks and improvement of the alarm system.

The action, favored unanimously, follows a recent renewal of a warning from the Ohio Inspection Bureau that insurance rates on certain types of property in Marion would be raised unless improvements were made. The bureau is the rate-making organization for insurance companies.

Other Council Matters

Other things at the meeting in city hall:

Council again delayed action on the proposed anti-gambling ordinance, backed by the Marion County Ministerial association.

DRAFT QUIZZES MAILED TO 50

First Large Group Sent to Rural Men; City's Also Scheduled.

Wholesale mailing of questionnaires to Marion county men registered for the military draft got under way today, with 50 going to rural residents. The city boards were expected to send out 50 each later today or tomorrow.

Mailing of the questionnaires means that the draft boards have begun a detailed record for each man to whom a questionnaire is sent. The answers to the questionnaires, which must be returned within five days of the date of mailing, provide the basis for classifying and selecting the men for military service.

The questionnaires go out first to men with low order numbers. Eventually every man registered in the county will receive one, although some may not get theirs for several weeks.

Other Draft News

Other draft news today:

Board No. 1 (Wards 1, 2 and 3) reported a new volunteer: Nolan Lawrence Hanawalt, 30, of 467 Evans road. He is the 30th volunteer in the county and the 18th for Board 1. His order number is 346.

The three boards received supplies for use later when ordering men to report for duty. However, other supplies needed urgently now have not arrived.

The local boards have received no information officially as to when to call men for duty or how many to call.

Officials of Board No. 3 (rural) in announcing mailing of the first 50 questionnaires again listed the addresses of the rural advisory board members, who will assist the registrars in filling out the questionnaires.

Advisory Board

The members are:

Henry Hoch of Dunbar pike Pleasant township, farmer.

Grant E. Mouser Jr., attorney of 301 East Church street; offices at 133 East Center street.

Francis B. Huber of 723 Mt Vernon avenue, assistant cashier at the Valley Banking Co.

These men may be contacted for advice on certain questions or may be asked to help fill out an entire questionnaire, if the registrars desire. Their services are free.

If the registrars wish to fill out their own questionnaire, they may do so.

Get First 50

The first 50 questionnaires went out to the following names. The numbers preceding the names are their local order numbers.

1. Wilbur Friedrich Mochel, Box 22, Wadon, 2. Lewis Virden Swartz, R. 3, Richmond, 3. Clarence Dettlold, Martel, 4. Marion, 5. Hughes, Rt. 4, Marion, 6. Fredrick Melvin Schwaderer, Rt. 1, Augusta, 6. ## HITLER GREETED RED PREMIER AT AXIS PARLEY

Fuehrer Angling for Free Hand in Drive Into Balkans.

By The Associated Press

Adolf Hitler today received Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov of Soviet Russia—once the target of Hitler's bitter scorn—and indications that Russia would be asked to join the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo axis for building a "new world order."

Presumably, Hitler was bargaining with Molotov for a Russian "hands off" policy in the Balkans and Near East.

Unlike other state receptions, when Germans have met visiting diplomats by playing their national anthems, the band at the Anhalter station where Molotov arrived lapsed into silence as soon as the Soviet envoy had finished taking the salute.

Nevertheless, Nazis said the visit was of great consequence and indicated that Hitler would invite Russia to enter the triple alliance of Germany, Italy and Japan.

As usual, Moscow was silent on the import of Molotov's mission.

WILLKIE MAKES POSITION CLEAR

Declares He'll Lead Loyal Opposition in Keeping with U. S. Way.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Wendell L. Willkie has rejected as a "totalitarian idea" any suggestion that the minority "surrender its conviction" and join the majority for the sake of a united front.

The defeated Republican presidential candidate counseled his followers in a radio address last night to constitute themselves a "loyal opposition" during the next four years, but cautioned against "opposing things just for the sake of opposition."

Concluding his remarks by quoting Lincoln's famous "with malice toward none" address, Willkie preceded this with a denunciation of his prepared text affirming his belief that President Roosevelt would keep the nation out of war unless attacked.

Taking cognizance of post-election speculation that he might be offered a federal post in the interest of national unity, Willkie made it plain that the American form of government was not designed to embrace such a conception.

6-Year-Old Boy Admits Starting 3 Fires at Home

A six-year-old Marion boy who told investigators he "likes to see firemen work," confessed to police and firemen over the week-end that he started three fires at his home during the last three weeks.

The most recent fire occurred Saturday afternoon about 5 o'clock and the boy immediately was taken to the police station for questioning. A week ago he admitted to Fire Chief McFarland and teachers that he had set two fires but later "repudiated" his "confession" and insisted he was innocent. Then Saturday night he admitted both of the earlier fires as well as the one Saturday afternoon, Chief McFarland said.

The boy told officials Saturday that he started all three fires with matches and on several occasions during the questioning indicated he is fascinated by flames and likes "to watch the firemen work."

All three fires resulted in damage to the house, firemen reported.

On Oct. 24 a blaze broke out in the basement and a week later another fire broke out in the kitchen. Saturday's fire started in the closet. Most of the clothing owned by the boy and his mother, a widow, was destroyed. Firemen from the Central and West Side stations who extinguished the flames estimated the loss at $100 to $125.

Officials said no decision has been made as to the disposition of the boy's case. For the time being he was left in custody of his mother.

24 Deaths in Midwest Laid To Gale; Property Loss High.

By The Associated Press

MUSKOGON, Mich., Nov. 12.—Coast guardsmen said today the bodies of a dozen lake sailors had been located in Lake Michigan, in and near Ludington harbor. A coast guard cutter was conducting a thorough search of the area.

Freezing weather overspread the midwest today in the wake of furious gales that battered the midcontinent, causing death or injury to scores of persons and extensive property damage.

The mercury sank below zero in the Dakotas, Montana, and Wyoming while sub-freezing temperatures were general from the Rockies to beyond the Mississippi.

At least 24 deaths were attributed to the violent wind, rain and snow storms that swept eastward yesterday from the Rocky mountains. Property damage was reckoned in the hundreds of thousands.

The gale attained a velocity of 80 miles in Wisconsin, 87 in Illinois, N. Y., 85 in Chicago, and Sandusky, O., and 63 at St. Louis.

The violent winds uprooted trees, smashed windows, tore cornices from buildings, leveled frame buildings, broke radio towers, crumpled huge steel electric signs, and ripped away power and communication lines.

Tornadoes struck Louisiana, Arkansas and Tennessee. Twenty families were left homeless when the storm struck Crocker-Mills, Tenn., causing damage expected to exceed $150,000.

Snow blanketed much of the western half of the continent, pillaging drifts that crippled transportation in Minnesota, Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota, and Utah.

Three persons were killed in Wisconsin and fears were expressed for the safety of eight duck hunters on a barren, treeless island in the Wisconsin river near Portage.

Ten duck hunters were marooned on a flooded, wind-swept island in the Mississippi river at Dallas City, Ill. A naval reserve boat with a crew of seven was said by shore watchers to have run aground on the island in a rescue attempt.

High Wind Keeps Cars from Crash on Ashley Road

While numerous traffic mishaps were reported throughout the state as a result of yesterday's gale, the high wind was credited by Marion state patrolmen for preventing what might have been a serious accident near Ashley yesterday afternoon.

A Cleveland youth, driving a light delivery truck he allegedly stole earlier in the afternoon at Ashland, was cornered by Patrolman W. C. Busch of Marion north of Ashley on Route 42 and in a desperate attempt to escape leaped from the truck while it was traveling about 10 or 15 miles an hour, the patrolman reported.

The truck careened driverless down the highway and headed for an approaching automobile.

The driver of the approaching car apparently didn't realize that the truck was running wild and

Six Lose Lives in Two Other Factory Blasts

Widely Separated Pennsylvania Plants Are Damaged.

By The Associated Press

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 12.—Deputy Coroner T. A. McKay reported three men were killed today in an explosion at the Burton Powder works of the American Cyanamid Corp., in the village of Edinburg, two miles from this western Pennsylvania city.

McKay said he understood one of several small buildings comprising the plant was "blown up" but had no further details. The blast shook this industrial community.

Sales offices of the American Cyanamid & Chemical Corp. in Pittsburgh reported the Edinburg plant's production was devoted solely to commercial materials and that no government orders were in production there.

A spokesman for the company at Edinburg declined to give any information on the blast.

The blast was the second in three days. An explosion at its Cole chemical division acid plant at Bound Brook, N. J., killed a plant superintendent and injured three workmen Sunday.

THREE DEAD IN ALLENTOWN, PA. BLAST

By The Associated Press

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Nov. 12.—Three men were killed today in an explosion of the Trojan Powder Co. plant at Troxell's Crossing, six miles northwest of here.

A company spokesman said the victims were in a small building where percussion caps were manufactured.

The building was destroyed by a blast heard for miles around.

The company is an independent concern.

The company held at least one annual defense contract. It was awarded an army order for $61,400 worth of explosives Nov. 8.

The dead were identified as: Fred Weller of Schuylkill, Pa. (Hugh Fisher of Allentown); William Schoenfelder of Allentown.

John Bronstein, company treasurer, estimated property damage at between $3,000 and $4,000.

After an investigation, Coroner Alexander M. Peters reported that the blast was "just an unfortunate accident."

SCHOOL DAMAGED BY CRAWFORD CO. FIRE

Blaze at Sulphur Springs Gets Out of Control.

By The Associated Press

BUCYRUS, Nov. 12.—Fire broke out in the Sulphur Springs school, six miles east of here in Liberty township, at 9:30 this morning.

Two hundred pupils marched to safety. The blaze, blamed indirectly on the wind storm which swept this section yesterday and last night, raged out of control at noon despite efforts of scores of volunteer firefighters and use of equipment from Bucyrus and New Washington.

The blaze was discovered by Frank Zerbe of Sulphur Springs, Crawford county dog warden, who noticed smoke when he was driving by the school. He went into the building and an alarm was sounded by James Keller, a member of the freshman class.

It was thought that the blaze resulted from a short circuit in wiring, which may have been worn bare by swinging in the heavy wind. The fire first was centered at the east corner on the second floor. It raged through the top section of the structure.

Those who were first on the scene added teachers and older pupils in removing contents of the building. Sulphur Springs is without fire fighting equipment and calls were sent to Bucyrus and New Washington. A bucket brigade was formed to provide water for the boiler tank of the Bucyrus pumper truck.

The building was erected in 1922 at a cost of $100,000. H. L. Andrews is superintendent.

A special federal grand jury which has been in session at Columbus since Oct. 28, considering testimony of approximately 160 witnesses in connection with promotion of cemetery lot sales in Marion, Columbus and Springfield is expected to adjourn Wednesday. The Associated Press reported from Columbus. This announcement was made by Assistant U. S. District Attorney Ray J. O'Donnell. Marion residents were among those who testified before the jury. The investigation included a study of the activities of Forest Glen, Inc., a corporation organized to promote cemetery lot sales in the three cities.

FORMER MARION MAN IS NO. 1 DRAFTEE AND GUEST

Has 10 Beautiful Hostesses in Party at Columbus.

Louis V. Woolum of Columbus, former Marion man, was the only one of Franklin county's 25 young men with draft No. 158 courageously or interested enough to report at a party given for this exclusive group last night at Columbus, news reports stated today.

The party was given by 10 members of the Danny Dare chorus girl troupe appearing with Laurel and Hardy at Loew's Ohio theater in Columbus. The Ohio soldiers-to-be with No. 158—first drawn in the lottery—all got telegraphed invitations, but only Mr. Woolum appeared.

He was immediately besieged by the girls and surrounded by beauty his picture was taken for the papers. He reported that he thinks army life will be all right and that in fact he plans to volunteer his services when the first call comes. Mr. Woolum is a graduate of Harding high school of a few years ago. He was formerly employed in an East Center street restaurant and is now an office worker in Columbus.

Pitfalls of Love

A Sequel to "Marriage Meddlers"

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge hears from Lillian of the mysterious disappearance of Marion from College.

DICKY'S WARNING was timely. Without it I should have been utterly unprepared for Lillian's news, and perhaps have blurted out the wrong thing to a woman racked with terror. But even with it, I found myself trembling in aqueous fashion as I picked up the dangling receiver.

For crowding tempestuously upon me were many memories—first of all of Lillian's face when, in the first year of my marriage, she had taken from her hidden safe the miniature of an adorable baby girl, her daughter Marion, of whose existence I had not dreamed, and told me the tragic story which had made me her closest friend, bound to her with infinite loyalty, and basked forever the fierce jealousy which her close comradeship with my husband, and his patent admiration and affection for her had engendered.

Looking Back

She had told me during that memorable interview of the vile trick by which Tom Morton, her first husband, and Marion's father had kept the child from her mother during her first years of childhood. He had conspired with Lillian's generous befriending of Dicky, a mere boy and much younger than she, with such venom that in order to save innocent Dicky from a public action which would have disgraced him, she gave Tom Morton the divorce he demanded, and the custody of their baby as well.

There were other memories of the years since a kindly fate gave her child back to Lillian, memories of winsome Marion's happy childhood, and of the time when Helena Brixton with her husband and her two children came back into Lillian's life, Carolyn to become Marion's staunch friend and "roomie" at boarding school, and her brother Ronald investing Marion's life with romance as her first admirer.

Lillian had experienced harrowing anxiety about her darling during the years, notably when Marion and Carolyn had been kidnapped from Whitney Hall by Charles Owen, rascally half-brother of Samuel Brixton, in an attempt to obtain the valuable contents of Marion's lock-box, a legacy from her grandmother. But never, in all the years of Marion's joyous childhood and winsome girlhood, had she experienced the slightest shred of worry over her daughter's conduct.

Did this message mean that this most poignant of all maternal anxiety was to be her portion now? I felt as if I were a creaking raven in thought, and attempted to disguise it as I spoke into the receiver.

Marion Has Disappeared!
"Lillian! This is Madge. I have just read the letter you sent me, and really, I believe most of it is what Dicky describes as 'Helena's vivid imagination working overtime.' I wouldn't worry."

Then it came, the cry I expected, to cope with which I was trying to prepare myself beneath my trivial babble.

"But Madge! you don't understand. I suppose Dicky didn't tell you. The letter means nothing to me now. But Marion has disappeared from the school. They haven't the slightest idea where she is. Oh! Madge! where do you think she can be?"

being released this morning. She requested that nothing be printed Saturday, but it will all be in the papers tomorrow. I didn't find out—

"That just goes to show," Aunt Maggie interrupted. "What a man's wife can do to him. Hugh Brannen doesn't care a thing about showing off. Won't have a chauffeur for himself and drives an inexpensive car. But she would have him buy that yacht. Got him in all the newspapers over in Miami."

"I've known Hugh Brannen ever since he was a baby. He was the pickiest little boy I ever saw but, of course, you never can tell by that. His mother was one of the South Carolina DuBoses. Her family was very displeased when she married Walter Brannen. The Brannens were nice people but—"

"Plain," interposed Eve. "Plain," Aunt Maggie continued, as though Eve did not exist. "And Walter really did make money. Now when Hugh married—"

"Let me see, his wife was Effie Goodrum, of course, but oh yes, her mother was one of the Virginia Pierces. No money, but very fine family. By the way, Kirk, did you have any Virginia connections?"

"I don't think so," Kirk smiled. "But thanks just the same."

"Speaking of money," said Eve, "there are all kinds of ways of getting it."

"If you are referring to Bob and Claire," said Aunt Maggie, with great dignity. "I think it is an eminently suitable match. Two charming young people uniting two very old and distinguished families. Their children will have two Sigmars, since there is one on each side—"

"Oh, Aunt Maggie," Claire broke in, smilingly, "do spare my maidenly modesty."

All of us who had grown up together had in childhood adopted immediate relatives as community property, most often regarded as our common cross. Now we all laughed, but it was plain to see that Kirk Pierce appreciated the humor of the situation more than the rest of us did. It was equally plain to see that Bob had not enjoyed that thrust about money.

"By the way," Kirk asked, obviously trying to lead, "did anybody hear how Wallace Arnold is getting along? I meant to go by the hospital today, but didn't have time."

"I telephoned," said Alice, "but his condition is still serious."

"Is that Jim Arnold's son?" Aunt Maggie wanted to know. And, "What is the matter with him?"

Aunt Maggie lectures "I'm not a bit surprised," she went on to tell us when informed that he had been injured in an automobile accident. "His father used to drive the finest team of horses in town and was always having runaways. He broke his leg in two places one time, I remember, and another time he was hung up on a barbed-wire fence with the seat of his pants torn out. Wallace coming by his wildness naturally."

Her opinion was still unchanged when Bill explained that Wallace had not been driving the car at the time of the accident. "Birds of a feather," she remarked, succinctly.

"When I'm alone with Aunt Maggie I can take all this sort of thing more or less for granted. It is only when I am conscious of its effect on other people that it annoys me acutely. But we got on toward dessert some how, some of Bessie's surpassing Tinsy Squire, and were just rising from the table when Aunt Maggie turned to me and said, "Oh, Sally, I almost forgot to tell you. I believe I have found the clue to the secret room."

"What's this about a secret room?" Bill asked as we settled ourselves in the library for coffee, and everybody clamored to hear more about it.

I told them all I knew, which wasn't much. "There is supposed to be one somewhere in the house, but its whereabouts was lost after my great-grandfather's death. At least my grandfather and grandmother always said they never had been able to find it. There was a whole generation between, of course. I remember we used to speculate about it when I visited here as a child. I hadn't thought of it for years."

"But why did he want a secret room?" Claire asked. "Was it a Bluebird room?"

"Nice thought for a bride to be having," chimed Kirk, with a grin. "Search me," I answered. "I think it was because he owned some valuable jade or didn't believe in banks or something. Wasn't that it, Aunt Maggie?"

"It was not at all unusual for houses to have secret rooms back at the time this one was built," she pointed out. "The story, as I always heard it, was that he had to keep large sums of money on the place. And, of course, there was his jade. You know the family moved to Roswell along with the Kings and Bullocks and Dimpseys and others from Darien, Georgia, who established a colony here on account of the climate. Most of the others built in what became the town of Roswell, but your great-grandfather acquired this land farther out. The families were all intimate, however, I remember hearing my own grandmother tell about being a guest at Little Bulloch's wedding at Bulloch Hall when she married Theodore Roosevelt. Grandmother said they brought ice for the wedding all the way from Savannah. Atlanta wasn't much of a place in those days."

"Wonderful," applauded Kirk, who always egged Aunt Maggie on.

"That's all very pretty," Eve interrupted, "but what became of the jade? Is it still in the secret room? I claim my share as a descendant if it is found."

Warned by Aunt Maggie's flush, I hastily began to explain that, as I remembered the story, the jade had been sold after the Civil War when the family hadn't much else to carry on with.

But while Aunt Maggie's tone was low-pitched, I could still hear her admonishing Eve. "Don't give yourself airs, Evelyn Pruitt. You are not a descendant of Your great-grandfather was only a second cousin of the Graham who built this house. You are descended from the black sheep of the family."

"Was the jade very valuable?" Claire asked politely.

"I don't know," Aunt Maggie admitted regretfully. "He had been a great traveler. I remember hearing that he thought most of his jade then he did of this whole plantation and maybe his family. He kept a journal in which he set down most of his expenditures, but never what he spent for jade. He was also a great reader, he assembled most of the books in this library. It was in one of them that I—"

Just then Andrew came in to collect the coffee things. "Excuse me, Miss Maggie, ma'am," he said, "but here's one of your papers you dropped. Leastwise, I think it is. It looks like one of them old papers you are always working with."

Taking the proffered sheet, Aunt Maggie unwound the chain which held her glasses at the shoulder, adjusted them on her nose and glanced at it hurriedly. "Oh, thank you, Andrew. Yes, indeed," she said. And then, as though suddenly reminded that duty calls, she rose to her feet. "If you will excuse me, I have some work to do."

No duce could have smiled with more conscious gracefulness as the men arose. And so, bidding us an inclusive good night, Aunt Maggie swept from the room.

Eve immediately launched into a dissertation on jade. I was not surprised when the group began to melt away. "Some powder," as a polite excuse, "A spot of brandy." Soon only Eve and I were left.

"Let's round up the others and go down and try the new game room," I said, when the subject of jade and I were both exhausted.

"I'd like a little powder," said Eve.

"I'll just speak to Bessie a moment," I answered.

Bessie's ideas and mine agree perfectly about breakfast. Now we could not decide between chicken hash or country sausage with waffles, so we compromised on both.

"And you know, Miss Sally," Bessie reminded me, "Mr. Bill ain't had nothing, lessen they's eggs."

"All right, scrambled eggs and some of that Virginia ham. And, oh, yes, Bessie, you brought along some of those fig preserves, didn't you?"

"Yes'm, and a jar of that wild-strawberry jam, too."

"Fine, let's have some of both." This conference could not have consumed more than a few minutes. Leaving the big, spicysmelling kitchen, which originally had been the dining room, I passed on into the breakfast room. The original kitchen had been a detached building, as was the case with so many ante-bellum houses. Cutting off, at the back, a part of the long central hall to use as a breakfast room had been one of the changes made since the place came into our possession.

I was thinking of all this, as I gave the room a final appraising glance before stepping out into the little back passageway beyond, with its steps leading down to the basement and the new game room. From this passageway, back steps also ascend upward. Two other doors open into it one leading to the office, another to the back porch.

In the passage I stumbled over something that blocked my way. There on the floor at my feet lay Aunt Maggie. To Be Continued her admonishing Eve. "Don't give yourself airs, Evelyn Pruitt. You are not a descendant of Your great-grandfather was only a second cousin of the Graham who built this house. You are descended from the black sheep of the family."

"Was the jade very valuable?" Claire asked politely.

"I don't know," Aunt Maggie admitted regretfully. "He had been a great traveler. I remember hearing that he thought most of his jade then he did of this whole plantation and maybe his family. He kept a journal in which he set down most of his expenditures, but never what he spent for jade. He was also a great reader, he assembled most of the books in this library. It was in one of them that I—"

Just then Andrew came in to collect the coffee things. "Excuse me, Miss Maggie, ma'am," he said, "but here's one of your papers you dropped. Leastwise, I think it is. It looks like one of them old papers you are always working with."

Taking the proffered sheet, Aunt Maggie unwound the chain which held her glasses at the shoulder, adjusted them on her nose and glanced at it hurriedly. "Oh, thank you, Andrew. Yes, indeed," she said. And then, as though suddenly reminded that duty calls, she rose to her feet. "If you will excuse me, I have some work to do."

No duce could have smiled with more conscious gracefulness as the men arose. And so, bidding us an inclusive good night, Aunt Maggie swept from the room.

Eve immediately launched into a dissertation on jade. I was not surprised when the group began to melt away. "Some powder," as a polite excuse, "A spot of brandy." Soon only Eve and I were left.

"Let's round up the others and go down and try the new game room," I said, when the subject of jade and I were both exhausted.

"I'd like a little powder," said Eve.

"I'll just speak to Bessie a moment," I answered.

well as in the press, but they are a small minority. The administration complained reporters had to write as their publishers want. Yes, in varying degrees, some not at all—in my case not at all as I had 235 publishers. But as all phases of political opinion were represented by the press, reporters generally should be able to find congenial company.

A Mistake
I came away convinced a mistake had occurred somewhere in my baring. No sufficient reason for it was apparent. The items which were conceived to be inaccuracies were words, not important facts.

The news of the baring naturally got around the Washington newspaper circle swiftly. When I was asked for a statement for publication I called Mr. Early's assistant Bill Hassett at the White House to learn the final status of my case, whether the bar was permanent or temporary. Other news-men also checked there. An hour or so later I was informed I had misinterpreted what was intended. I was welcome to future presidential press conferences, a mistake had been made.

Here, it seems was a little hurry on the part of the White House authorities against the press.

I wonder how much of the whole press-government situation is in the same fix.

County's Cage Season To Start This Week As Football Does Fade-out

Rural Court Teams Open Thursday
as Irish Wind Up Grid Year;
Prexies Play Finale Friday.

FOOTBALL and basketball will share this week's scholastic sports program, Marion Harding and Marion St. Mary playing season ending grid games while members of the Marion county scholastic cage circuit open their 1940-41 schedule.

The Saints will wind up their football schedule here Thursday night by entertaining Lima Central Catholic. The Presidents ring down the curtain on their 1940 schedule by playing host to Akron Kenmore here Friday night. County league basketball clubs will be in action Thursday night.

The Irish come up to their final encounter with a record of three wins, three losses and a tie. They have high hopes of boosting their batting average over the .500 mark with a final game victory. It would be a fitting contribution to the special program being arranged. Dad's Night will be celebrated and this season's outstanding athlete will be presented with an award.

Anti-Glimax

Coach Bill Williams faces a big problem in keeping his cohorts keyed up for the season-ending game, which comes as sort of an anti-climax. The Presidents closed their league schedule last week by earning a share of the conference championship and there's bound to be a natural let down. They have won seven of eight starts and may find Akron Kenmore a tougher opposition than many of the league foes.

The county basketball schedule, which continues through Feb. 14, opens with a five-match card Thursday night. This year, for the first time, there will be no feminine competition, girls' basketball having been outlawed by the state athletic association. Boys' reserve games will replace the girls' contests as preliminaries.

Cage Schedule

Thursday night's inaugural program takes Wildo to Morral, Caledonia to Prospect, Martel to Agosta, Meeker to Claridon, Kirkpatrick to Green Camp. Teams of Pleasant and Green Camp will start on the latter's court Friday night in a non-league encounter. The season's county cage schedule follows.

Nov. 14—Wildo at Morral, Caledonia at Prospect, Martel at Agosta, Meeker at Claridon, Kirkpatrick at Green Camp.

Nov. 23—Green Camp at Waldo, Prospect at Kirkpatrick, Agosta at Pleasant, Morral at Martel, Claridon at LaRue, Caledonia at Meeker.

Dec. 6—Waldo at Prospect, Kirkpatrick at LaRue, Pleasant at Morral, Martel at Green Camp, Claridon at Agosta.

Dec. 13—LaRue at Waldo, Agosta at Caledonia, Morral at Claridon, Green Camp at Pleasant, Prospect at Martel, Meeker at Kirkpatrick.

Dec. 20—Kirkpatrick at Agosta, Caledonia at Morral, Claridon at Green Camp, Martel at LaRue, Pleasant at Meeker.

Jan. 3—Agosta at Waldo, Morral at Kirkpatrick, Green Camp at Caledonia, LaRue at Pleasant, Meeker at Prospect.

Jan. 10—Waldo at Caledonia, Pleasant at Kirkpatrick, Claridon at Martel, Prospect at LaRue, Green Camp at Agosta, Meeker at Morral.

Jan. 17—Kirkpatrick at Waldo, Pleasant at Martel, Caledonia at Claridon, Agosta at Prospect, Morral at Green Camp, LaRue at Meeker.

Jan. 24—Waldo at Martel, Caledonia at Pleasant, Kirkpatrick at Claridon, Morral at Prospect, Green Camp at LaRue, Agosta at Meeker.

Rams' Stars Doing Okay in Lettuce League

Associated Press Feature Service

CLEVELAND—Two bruising football players are the most sought-after stars in the Cleveland lettuce league this season.

Johnny Drake, pile-driving fullback, and Parker Hall, hard-running halfback, are kept pretty busy with the Cleveland Rams' 11-game schedule in the National league. But their luncheon calendar is jammed even more.

The boys work best as a team. On the field it's Drake the plunger and Hall the runner and passer. At the speaker's table, it's Drake the power talker and Hall the drawing humorist.

Naturally they talk football, but in question periods afterwards they will give listeners opinions on anything—except politics.

"It's not new to me," Drake says. "Noble Klizer, my Purdue coach, made us get out and speak often. I like the idea. It gives us a chance to meet people."

Says Hall, whose recent quickly verifies his Mississippi collegiate career:

"It's a lot of fun as long as the meetings are formal. I would hate to have to make a long speech."

GOPHERS TAKE LEAD IN FOOTBALL VOTING

Oust Cornell in Race for National Honors.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Minnesota's Golden Gophers, who don't win by much but who don't let that stop them from winning, gained another close decision today by adding Cornell to a list of victims that already included Washington, Nebraska, Northwestern and Michigan.

The Gophers ousted Cornell from the lead in the fast-closing race to determine the country's No. 1 football team. After Cornell had been on top for four successive weeks in The Associated Press ranking poll, the tide swung Minnesota's way this week as 55 out of 148 experts from coast to coast put Minnesota at the head of the list and one other split the honors among Minnesota, Cornell and 1930's top team, Texas A. and M.

These three placed in that order—Minnesota, first with 1,314 points; Cornell, second with 1,260; and Texas A. and M., third with 1,202. Only one team to poll more than 1,000 points, with 1,068.

The standing (points figured on 10-9-8-7-6, etc., basis, first place votes in parentheses):

1 Minnesota	(55 1/2)	1,314
2 Cornell	(45 1/2)	1,260

Upper Sandusky, Carey Fight to 0-0 Tie in Classic Game

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Nov. 12.—High wind and a water-soaked field were major factors in the twenty-seventh meeting of Upper Sandusky and Carey football teams here last night, and the result was a 0-0 tie in the classic game.

An estimated 2,500 fans braved the wind and cold to see the renewal of rivalry, which has been an Armistice day classic for 22 years. It was the first game of the series to be played at night and the outcome left the record standing at Upper Sandusky 16 victories, Carey six and five deadlocks.

Carey followers laid a claim to a moral victory since their favorites went into the game as the underdogs. The visitors waded deep into Upper Sandusky territory, getting within the 15 yard line three times, before the Rams held them for downs. Carey got 7 first downs to the Rams' three.

Nearly all the game was played on Upper Sandusky territory, the Rams never being able to penetrate deeper than Carey's 40-yard line. For 12 athletes who are seniors, it was the last scholastic grid game. They are: Donald Young, Frank Robey, William Wood, Harold Beldschies, Richard Schoenberger and Craig Bowman of Upper Sandusky; Don Faires, Paul DeAmicus, Richard Jacobs, Bernard Pieracini, Leland Strahm and Robert Moser of Carey.

The line-ups:

Upper Sandusky	Carey
Slammer	Nye
Miner	D. Faires
Young	Trolano
Robey	Wickham
Lucas	V. Jacobs
Wood	DeAmicus
Wojta	P. Jacobs
Heldschies	Pieracini
Schoenberger	Strahm
Strahm	Stacy
Substitutes: Upper Sandusky, Bowman, Dardinger; Carey, Dunn, Zahn.

NEW SCORING DEVICE

USED AT ALLEYS HERE

Latest innovation to be introduced at Marion's bowling centers is a device which projects the running score of a team match on an overhead screen for the benefit of players and spectators. The device, known by the trade name Tel-E-Score, has been placed in service at the Marion Recreation Center on South Prospect street. Its method of operation consists of focusing a strong light through a transparent sheet of cellophane, on which the score is recorded. The image is reflected onto a screen erected above the approaches to the alleys.

PAULSON TEAM LOSES

Paulson's Grill bowling team dropped a decision to the New York Cafe quintet at Lima Sunday night. The local team won two of three games and finished with a total of 2,380, but lost the match by 49 pins. Members of Paulson's squad are Sid Tennant, Marion McKeever, Louis Paulson, Rodney Kilbury and James Francis.

DOGGERS PAY PLENTY TO GET KIRBY HIGBE

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—With the purchase of pitcher Kirby Higbe from the Phillies yesterday, the Brooklyn boss, Larry MacPhail, became the successor to Tom Yawkey of the Boston Gold Sox as baseball's freest spender.

Just how much money the Dodgers paid for the 25-year-old right hander wasn't announced, but the best estimates put it at $100,000. Brooklyn also sent Vito Truitts and Bill Crouch, pitchers, and Thompson Livingston, a catcher drafted from Springfield of the Eastern league, to the Phils. The combination of cash and players comes close to fitting the $150,000 price tag that Owner Gerry Nugent had placed upon his star hurler.

No Armistice at Shovel's Mat Show As LaRance, Silvey Win Rough Bout

There was nothing closely resembling an armistice at last night's wrestling matches in the Marion Steam shovel arena, during which Jules LaRance, Canadian claimant to the junior heavyweight crown, and John Silvey of Hamilton, Ont., kept their records intact.

LaRance whipped Angelo Savoldi of Three Oaks, Mich., in a slam-bang final. Fans who thought the Canuck was off form or ill when he broke clean at the start of the melee soon learned differently. He quickly dropped back into the role of a rugged ruffian, slugging his way out of the clinches and seeking the ropes for his own protection.

Uses Smother Hold

He used a smother hold to good advantage in the first round and forced Savoldi to carry the fight most of the way. Savoldi's best grip was an arm twist, while LaRance resorted to his old favorite, a step-over toe hold in the corner of the ring where he was within easy reach of the stranda. Savoldi moved him down, however, with an elbow jab followed by a series of drop kicks. The fall was clocked at 19 minutes. Savoldi tied up the self-styled champion in a headlock for the better part of the second round. LaRance eluded his way free, only to be drop-kicked from the ring. He charged out similar treatment for his foe and then wrapped Savoldi's arm in a punishing hammerlock that during the match. LaRance strangled his opponent's arm out on a mat, stood on it with one foot, and stomped on it with the other. When Savoldi finally did concede the round his arm was paralyzed and he was unable to continue for the remainder of the match. The decisive fall was 17 minutes.

Plenty of Action

Action, in capital letters, describes the match which saw John Silvey's victory record unmarred and ended in defeat for Ray Chaundy of Detroit. Silvey used his favorite flying whip to tame his foe after the first round went 16 minutes. To whip, a la Silvey, is applied by grabbing a foe's wrist, pulling him into a shoulder jolt and sending him flying up and over the mat at a mile-a-minute clip. Chaundy survived the demonstration to even the score when he copped the second round in five minutes with a monkey flip. Silvey resorted to the same favorite grip that won him the first fall to take the decisive third eight minutes.

The scheduled 20-minute pre-lim went only 10 minutes with Tex Riley of Amarillo, Tex., defeating Ned Taylor of Camden, N. J. Riley used a reverse legelson to floor his opponent.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, Nov. 13

Judging by the lunar transits of this day it may prove more lucrative and happy to "go it alone" rather than to cast your lot with any sort of group, organization or "collective bargaining" ideas. Such are under rule of a destructive rather than productive vibration, and in this disruptive direction there may be some rather ruthless, drastic and uncomfortable activities. Nevertheless, joining with the "upper brackets" may advance the financial status as well as enhance position, prestige and pleasure.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year in which their best interests may be promoted by working in co-operation with "higher ups," with those of financial, business and social standing, rather than joining forces with groups, whether political, diplomatic, fraternal, or for collective ideas of social service. Those latter are under a disruptive ray, while the others are under expansive, productive, generous and pleasant auspices—ambitious, fruitful and promising for business as well as personal objectives.

A child born on this day may be expected to be easy-going, pleasure-loving, generous and kindly, making his happiest success in connection with kindred souls rather than uniting with others for uplift and social progress.
